Organization Rationale

Delight Ministries exists to invite college students into Christcentered community that fosters vulnerability and transforms stories. The missions of Delight Ministries and The Ohio State University go hand in hand, for both desire for students to deepen their relationship with Jesus, discover who they are, and give back to the community. The Ohio State University is an amazing place with incredible, passionate people, but sometimes it is difficult to find “your people”, your own community. Delight would contribute to existing campus life and the overall student experience by being one more place where students can find community, friendships, and continue to get to know Jesus. Fantastic organizations and groups already exist on campus, but Delight would provide one more avenue for people to find their home, their life long friends, and their place within the larger Ohio State community.

Although Delight Ministries is designed with college women in mind, it is an open and welcoming community through and through. The curriculum is written by college women with other college women in mind, but everyone could benefit from the testimonies of these women and no one would ever be turned away from Delight if they did not identify as female. The goal of Delight is to create genuine community where students feel free to be vulnerable and feel accepted just as they are. Delight will partner with The Ohio State University in their effort to create a loving, inclusive, Christcentered community on campus.

Delight at The Ohio State University has a thriving community, which has continued to be sustained through students investing their time and energy into Delight and into getting to know each other. In order to keep this community alive and healthy for the next two years or more, Delight will need to continue to invite students from all different spheres of campus. There are students who are a part of Delight who are athletes, musicians, involved in Greek life, from every different kind of major, and from a plethora of backgrounds and hometowns. Delight currently strives to be inclusive to all different types of students with different interests and walks of life, and will continue to in order to be an inviting and sustainable community. Delight also has a large appeal to incoming freshman who are looking to plug into a community and make friends, as a community we try to be intentional in reaching out to new freshman and they help to keep the community sustainable. Delight has been operating up until this point without financial support, but could expand to seek financial support through donations (Delight Ministries is a 501C3 so donations are tax deductible), bake sales, or other means of fundraising. Other Delight’s across the country have set up partnerships with local restaurants and businesses, which donate goods to Delight, so that is also a possibility for Delight at The Ohio State University.
